Payment Type

All

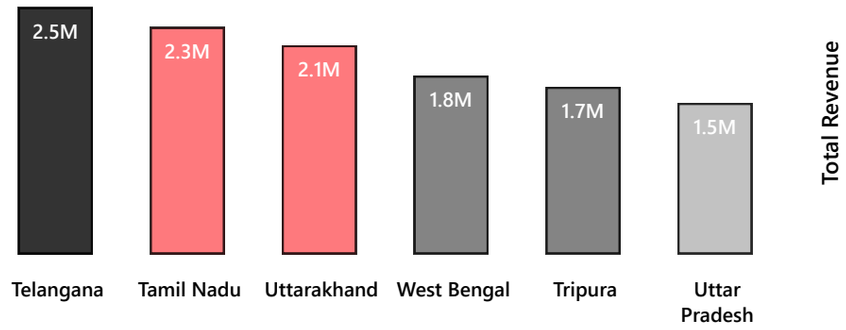
Product Sales Performance Analysis

Sales Channel

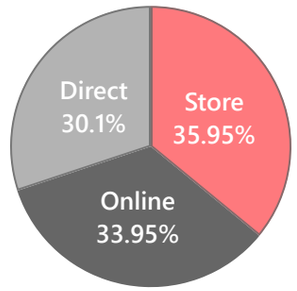
Direct | Online | Store

Average Order Value	Total Quantity	Unique Customers	Total Orders	Online Sales	Offline Sales
51,202	4899	996	1000	17385K	18407K

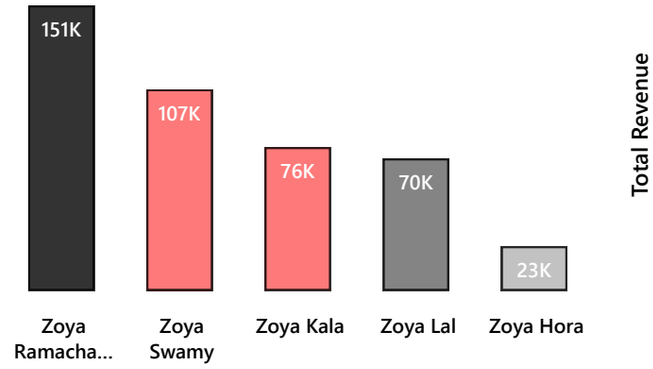
Revenue by State



Sales Revenue by Channel



Sales Revenue by Customer



Sales Revenue by Product

Sales performance shows steady revenue generation with consistent customer transactions. A few key products contribute significantly to total revenue.

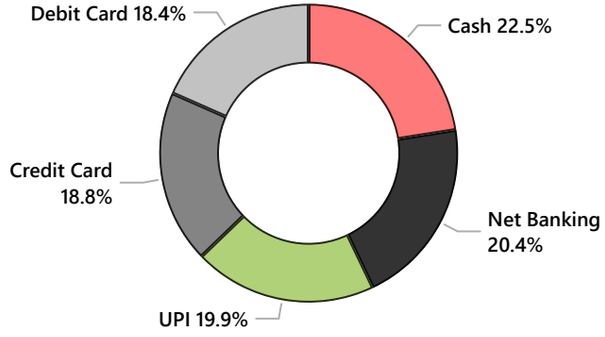
Customer preference toward one primary purchasing channel, while payment method analysis shows the most commonly used payment options among customers.

Support popular payment methods and introduce targeted promotions for lower-performing products to increase their contribution to overall sales.

Total Orders by Payment Type



Payment Type

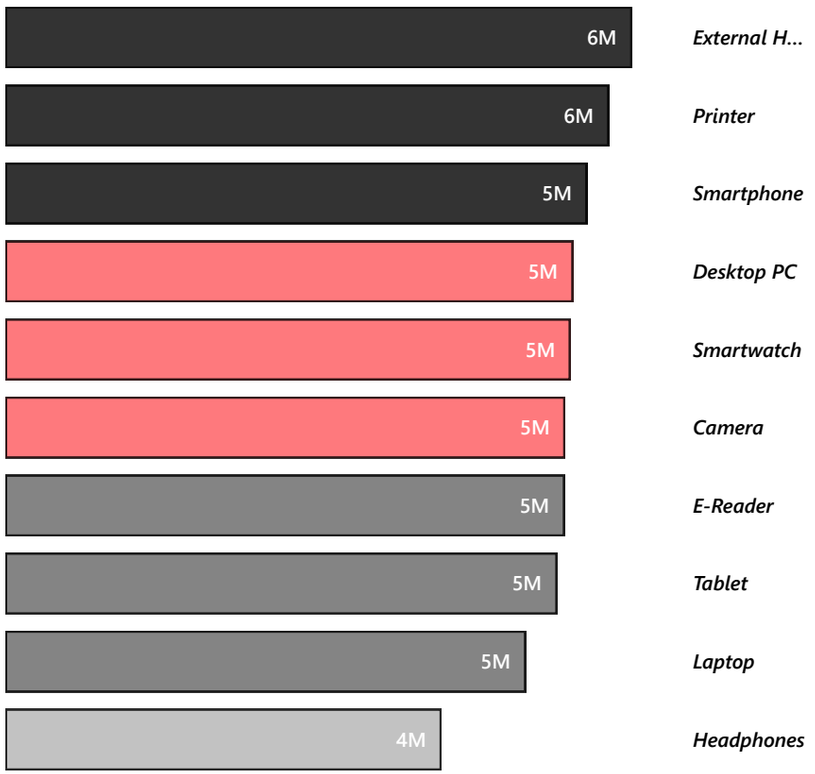
All

Product Sales Performance Analysis

Sales Channel

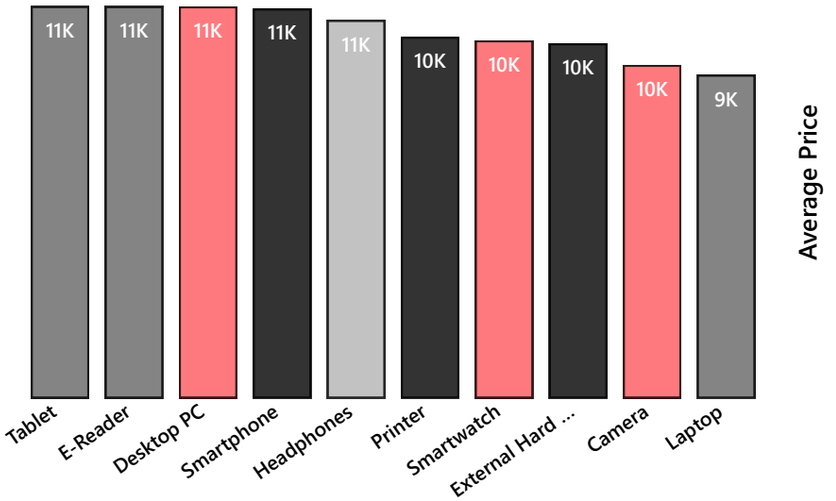
Direct | Online | Store

Sales Revenue by Product



Ex. Hardware & Printer contribute the highest share of total revenue, Other products such as phones, Camera, and desktops generate comparatively lower revenue, suggesting that External Hardware play a key role in overall business profitability

Average Product Price



Product Revenue Contribution

Hardware & Camera have the highest number of units sold, Printer drive higher sales volume, showing strong demand in the market.

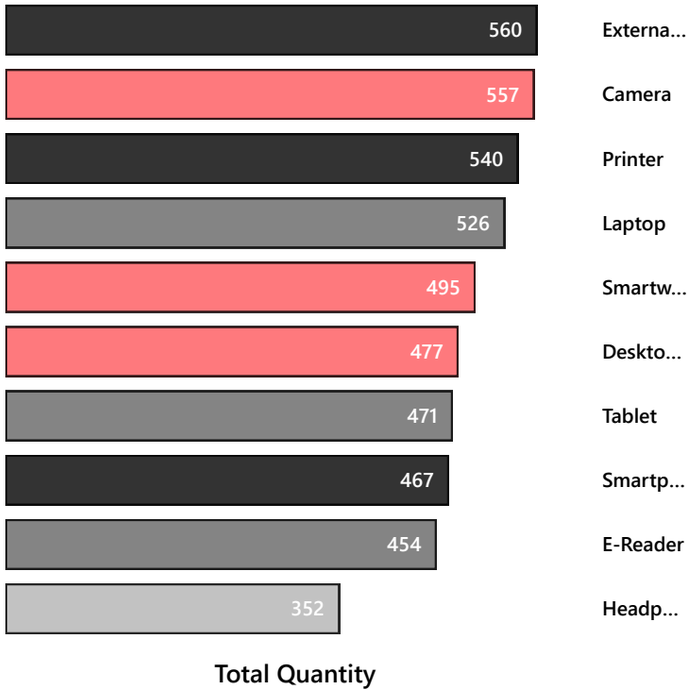
Tablet are the most expensive products, while phones have relatively lower prices, price difference explains why some products generate higher revenue despite selling fewer units.

Quantity Sold by Product



Product Sales Performance Analysis

The revenue trend over time shows frequent fluctuations in sales, indicating that daily revenue varies significantly across the period. Several revenue peaks occur at different points, suggesting periods of higher customer demand or successful sales activities.

These fluctuations, the overall pattern suggests consistent revenue generation throughout the year, with occasional spikes reaching higher sales levels.

Monitoring sales trends regularly can help the company plan targeted promotions and inventory management during high-demand periods.

Some states show stronger online sales performance, while others still generate a significant portion of revenue through offline channels.

For states with strong online performance, invest more in digital promotions and online campaigns.
Focus marketing efforts on the dominant sales channel in each state to maximize revenue.